Does the altitude have an impact during pregnancy?

Our property is located in a middle mountain (1850 meters). High altitude can be an issue during pregnancy only above 2 400 meters.

It also strengthens the body since a natural environment has a positive impact on stress level and a greater light will boost your vitamin D production, which helps to be in a good mood.

Yes, there is a medical center in Courchevel 1850 with doctors and nurses and the closest hospital can be reached in less than an hour by car, 15 minutes by helicopter.

La Sivoliere is working with Odacité skincare products, a sustainable brand using only natural ingredients and plants extracts, organic for most of them.

Treatments can be also performed with neutral organic oils for massages and Gua Sha facials.
